

SKID ASSEMBLIES

Skid Assemblies are used most commonly to isolate fragile equipment transported in large shipping containers and military shelters. The lower surface of the bottom rail is fitted with a replaceable, wear resistant plate that allows the equipment to be towed over all types of rugged terrain. Provisions for towing and fork lifting can be incorporated into the skids if required. The entire assembly (including isolators) can be painted with CARC or any other type of paint to harmonize with the equipment.

MISCELLANEOUS

The versatile nature of cable as a resilient element allows it to be used in an almost endless number of applications and configurations. From equipment weighing a few ounces to many tons, IDC can custom design and build any type of isolation system required, all within our own state of the art facility. Feel free to call us to discuss your particular isolation needs.
